

Acknowledgements

I suspect that this list of associates I've had the honor to work with may look a lot like name-dropping. And while I'm able to express my gratitude in print at last, some notables are no longer alive to receive my formal appreciation. Nevertheless it was a particular honor to work with J.D. McClatchy at Yale Review, William Phillips at Partisan Review and Richard Poirier at Raritan. I also owe my sincere thanks to the late Chris Busa, a family friend as well as a professional colleague.

For publishing other of these essays it is a pleasure to acknowledge the following: Robert Boyers, Nancy Brokaw, Timothy Donnelly, Herb Golder, Vincent Katz, Jackson Lear, David Lehman, Wendy Lesser, Askold Melnyczuk, Anna Rabinowitz, Christopher Ricks, Mark Rudman, Frederick Smock, Jan Trembley, Willard Spiegelman, Barry Weller, Ryan Wilson.

I must also thank a number of remarkable associate or managing editors: Archie Burnett, Susan Bianconi, Nick Poburko, Stephanie Volmer, Raphael Rubenstein.

There are a number of acquaintances and correspondents to whom I owe a debt of gratitude for their interest and personal encouragement: Dore Ashton, Albert Goldbarth, Cees Nooteboom, Michael Schmidt. Unfortunately, given the course of over thirty years, a number of such personages are also no longer here to receive my thanks; among these admirables were Bill Berkson, Varjun Bogosian, Bill Corbett, Cornelius Castoriadis, Guy Davenport, James Dickey, Carlos Goez, John Hollander, Nicole Loraux, Frank MacShane, Harry Mathews, Ifeanyi Menkiti, Christopher Middleton, Albert Murray, Richard Olney, Roger Shattuck, George Steiner.

Some of these essays began as talks given at various conferences: Among those who welcomed me to panels and seminars are Massimo Bacigalupo, Walter Baumann, John Gery, Mary de Rachelwiltz, Alison Keith, Karl Kirchwey, Philip Lopate, Adelaide Russo, Stephen Romer, Don Share, Ernest Suarez, the late Emily Mitchell Wallace, Rosanna Warren.

Richard Howard invited me to share my thoughts on Yves Bonnefoy at Columbia University's School of the Arts. Nicole Cooley and Roger Sederat kindly allowed me to speak about Sulpicia and Beatrice de Die at the CUNY-Queens College MFA Program in Creative Writing and Literary Translation. Other institutions that have been especially hospitable to me and my projects include The Camargo Foundation; The American Academy in Rome; The Beinecke Library; The Wellfleet Public Library; The Provincetown Art Association and Museum.

In addition to Richard Howard, who set my publishing career on its course, there are a number of literary colleagues and friends I must thank. These include Mary Ann Caws, Jed Perl, George Poe, Robert Pinsky, Paul Resika, Deborah Rosenthal, Anthony Rudolf, Grace Schulman, Richard Sieburth, Laura Slatkin.

But I must reserve a special shout-out to the extraordinary Clare Carroll, both a true scholar and a true friend.

And, finally, to David and Saskia: Words cannot express my appreciation of your support and love.

Mary Maxwell